Getting involved with CLEO is quite possibly the best decision I have ever made in preparation for law school.”
—De’Ericka Aiken
Georgetown University Law Center

“I highly recommend every starting law student to apply for AIE—it may be the secret to your success in law school.”
—Salman Bhojani
SMU Dedman School of Law

“I am extremely grateful for what CLEO has done for me throughout my time in law school. I have not missed a conference since becoming a member of the CLEO family, and each conference has offered something valuable which augmented my legal education.”
—Tremaine Ross
University of Maryland Francis King Carey School of Law

The first year of law school is the most important year. Employers hire second year law students primarily on their first-year GPA. If you want to hear them say “YOU'RE HIRED” and you want to be more than a law school SURVIVOR, then you need the right attitude to take control of your legal education.

ATTITUDE IS ESSENTIAL
At the Attitude is Essential (AIE) seminar, you will:

- Develop the skills you need to take control over your own law school learning process
- Learn how to:
  - Read and brief court opinions
  - Prepare for law school exams, including the best practices for memorizing all the law you need to know for your exams
  - Write exams using the IRAC form
  - Conquer your workload, time, and stress in law school
- Experience the Socratic Method by participating in a Mock Law School Class
- Write a contracts essay exam and debrief the experience
- Discover the benefits of study groups and how to make sure your groups are productive and not dysfunctional
- Begin to build a network of other successful law students
