

CORPORATE TAXATION

FALL SEMESTER 2013

PROFESSOR WILLIAM STRENG

- 1. Purpose of this Syllabus. The purpose of the syllabus is provide details concerning the requirements applicable to this course, including the schedule for class sessions, examination policies, professor availability, and similar matters.
- 2. Course Objective. This course will involve the comprehensive examination of the federal income tax laws applicable to corporations and their shareholders. Topics to be covered will include the tax effects of :
 - a) The formation of corporations and the transfers of assets to controlled corporations;
 - b) The capital structure of a corporation, including debt and equity;
 - c) Distributions from a corporation (e.g., dividends, stock redemptions & liquidations);
 - d) Special types of corporations (e.g., Subchapter S tax option corporation);
 - e) Corporate stock and asset sales;
 - f) Tax-free corporate reorganizations, mergers and other restructurings.

The objective of this class is to consider both (1) the technical federal income tax rules, and (2) the underlying fundamental tax policy objectives of the federal corporate income tax rules in these contexts. Where appropriate emphasis is focused on current corporate structuring transactions and related federal tax planning.

3. Class sessions. This class will meet on Monday & Wednesday at 7:30PM (until 8:45PM). Consistent with university policy, a minimum of 80 percent attendance is required for each student. An attendance list will be circulated at each class session. Those individuals not satisfying the attendance requirement will be reported to UH Law Center administrative officials for appropriate action.

4. Required materials for this course:

- a) Schwarz & Lathrope, "Fundamentals of Corporate Taxation--Cases and Materials," Foundation Press (Eighth Edition, 2012). Students are strongly discouraged from trying to use a prior edition (e.g., the 7th edition) for this class.
- b) A current volume of the Internal Revenue Code or a "Selected Sections"

Code edition containing the corporate income tax provisions. During class sessions specific references will be made by the Professor to the page numbers for various Code provisions as included in the following tax code volume: CCH “2013-2014 Edition - Federal Income Tax - Code and Regulations - Selected Sections.” This volume should be available at the bookstore immediately before the commencement of Fall Semester 2013. Note that this CCH Code and Regulations volume also has a CD-ROM included (in the back pocket) to enable the student to download this entire volume to a computer, if desired.

c) Additional supplemental materials will be provided at various times (& may also be posted to Professor Streng’s website).

5. Grade and examination. The grade in this course will be entirely dependent upon an essay format examination. Shortly after the beginning of the semester a copy of the examination in Mr. Streng’s prior (2012) corporate tax class will be provided to inform students of the anticipated examination approach. A take-home exam was administered for Fall Semester 2012 and, subject to further class discussion, this format is anticipated to be the examination technique for the Fall Semester 2013 class.

6. Class schedule and discussion. The material to be covered during the anticipated 28 class sessions will be in the order as presented in the Schwarz & Lathrope casebook, subject to the following: The chapters in this casebook not to be covered during this course will probably be Chapters 12, 13 and 14. Chapter 10 will also quite possibly not be covered. Chapter 15 concerning Subchapter S (or “tax option”) corporations will be covered at the end of the semester during the last two (or more) class sessions.

During the class sessions substantial attention will be devoted to examining the problems presented in the casebook for each segment. Students should prepare their own answers to these problems in preparation for the discussion during the class sessions.

Powerpoint slide presentations will be used during the Fall Semester 2013 corporate tax class sessions to facilitate the class sessions. These slides will be posted at the following Internet site:

www.law.uh.edu/faculty/wstreng/homepage/tax presentations

The currently posted year 2012 slides will be periodically replaced (after modifications) during the Fall Semester 2013 as the class proceeds through the semester. As modified, the replacement slides will be posted to this website promptly after their revision and the completion of the relevant class discussion of a particular chapter. The 2013 revised slides will not be posted prior to that time.

7. Use of Personal Computers. The permitted use of personal computers in the classroom is solely for the purposes of (i) reviewing class preparation notes and taking notes during class, and (ii) for viewing the Corporate Taxation Powerpoint slides available from Professor Streng's website. "Surfing the web" and text messaging are specifically excluded from permissible in-class computer usage. Your nonparticipation in the classroom discussion which is attributable to your diversionary uses of the personal computer during the class session means that you are absent from the class. You are then not eligible to be counted as present on the attendance sheet and are subject to appropriate action as the professor may determine in his discretion. You are also encouraged not to use your computer merely to enable you to primarily record the class discussion.
