Note: due to a previous professional commitment, I will start class a week later, on Tuesday January 26

January: Ch. 1
Tu 26 [First class]

February:
Additional readings will be assigned after we complete Ch. 1
Paper topics due February 18

March:
Detailed paper outlines due March 10
[UH Spring Break: March 14-19]

April:
Th 28 [last class/makeup class]

May 1:
Papers will be due by this date

Depending upon our progress, we might have to make up a class date, TBA. This is a proposed schedule, subject to change, with notice. Any revisions to the syllabus will be posted on the course website/listserv. We will not read all the cases; I will distribute a reading list for all the cases we will cover in class.

Paper topics of your choice are due February 18; detailed outlines are due by March 10. Papers will be due by or before May 1.
Subject to other obligations, I am in my office most days beginning around 8:30 a.m. My office hours are any time that we arrange to meet, including Saturdays, if they are more convenient for you.

Everyone must be prepared for class each night, and may be called upon. Every student is permitted three absences for any reason, but more than three absences will count towards your class participation, and will result in a lowering of the course grade. This is a small class, and we all need to be ready every night.

On an experimental basis, I will not allow any computers or e-devices to be used in class. This means no e-versions of the course materials. I will not receive any royalties from the sales of the book materials, and will donate the funds to a UHLC student organization.

Anyone with a disability requiring accommodation should see the UHLC Office for Student Services. No one may record classes without permission.
