

CONSTITUTIONAL LAW
Syllabus – Spring 2018
Professor D. Theodore Rave

Class Hours: Tuesdays 9-10:30am, Wednesdays 1-2:30pm, Thursdays 9-10:30am, room 240 TUII.

Office Hours: Wednesdays after class from 2:30-4pm. I am always happy to talk with students, so if that time is not convenient for you please feel free to email me to set up an appointment. My office is 142 BLB. My email address is dtrave@central.uh.edu. My assistant is Lillian White.

Required Casebook: SULLIVAN & FELDMAN, CONSTITUTIONAL LAW (18th ed. 2013). Note that this is not the latest edition of the casebook. I will also post required reading materials on the Blackboard website from time to time.

Supplemental Resources: You may find the following text helpful throughout the course, but please do not take this as a suggestion to go out and buy it. Except for excerpts that I assign and post on Blackboard, you are not responsible for supplemental readings for the purposes of the exam. And your time and energy will be much better spent focusing on the assigned readings. I provide suggestions only because there are many commercial study aids of varying quality out there. This one is at least good. Please note that the Supreme Court is constantly changing the landscape of constitutional law, and there have been important new decisions since the supplement's publication. I will update the casebook in class or with handouts, but I will not update secondary sources. For this reason, it is dangerous to rely on secondary sources (listed below or others) as stating what the law "is."

- ERWIN CHEMERINSKY, CONSTITUTIONAL LAW: PRINCIPLES AND POLICIES (5th ed. 2015) (on reserve in library)

Learning Outcomes: Learn about the constitutional law of the United States and learn to think like a lawyer.

Assessment: Your grade will be based primarily on a take-home final exam. The test will be open book. All answers must be exclusively your own work. You may not consult with others about the exam once the exam period has started. Please review the Honor Code. Final grades may be modified up or down by one level (e.g., B+ to A- or A- to B+) based on class participation.

Class Participation: Participation in class discussion is necessary both for your own understanding of the material and for the benefit of your classmates. I expect you to be prepared for every class. If, for any reason, you are not prepared for a class I ask that you let me know in advance (either by email or by leaving a note on the lectern in class) and I will not call on you that day. If you are unprepared more than twice during the semester, it will affect your grade.

Practice Problems: There will be several practice problems throughout the semester. You will be required to complete and turn in answers. These will not be graded, but will count towards class participation. Students that make a good faith effort to complete the practice problems will satisfy this requirement for class participation purposes. Please keep in mind that your grade can be modified up or down for class participation.

Attendance: You are expected to attend all class sessions. If you fail to attend at least 80% of class meetings you will be in violation of ABA and Law Center policy and may be dropped from the course. I will track attendance with a sign-in sheet. It is an honor code violation to sign in for another student. Late arrivals may be treated as absences.

Computer Policy: Use of laptops or other electronic devices is permitted for class-related purposes only. Violations of this policy will be treated as unpreparedness.

Sensitive Topics: More than any other course in the first year of law school, Constitutional Law deals with sensitive topics about which people have strongly held and widely divergent opinions. I find that class discussion is the most productive when students feel free to try out positions with which they (or others) may not agree and to test the assumptions underlying their own (or others') views. For this reason, class discussion is strictly "off the record." Outside of the classroom, you may not attribute any statements made in class to any of your classmates. And any audio or visual recording of class is prohibited. The only exception to this policy is that I will arrange for the law school to record any make-up classes that might become necessary.

Accommodation: If you have a disability and require an accommodation, please contact the Center for Students with Disabilities.

Counseling: Counseling and Psychological Services (CAPS) can help students who are having difficulties managing stress, adjusting to the demands of a professional program, or feeling sad and hopeless. You can reach CAPS (www.uh.edu/caps) by calling 713-743-5454 during and after business hours for routine appointments or if you or someone you know is in crisis. No appointment is necessary for the "Let's Talk" program, a drop-in consultation service at convenient locations and hours around campus.

Reading Assignments: Reading assignments will be announced in class or emailed to all class members. I will provide you with a course outline and reading assignments in installments as the semester goes on. Unless otherwise noted, page numbers refer to the Sullivan & Feldman casebook. (BB) refers to supplemental readings posted on Blackboard.

First Assignment: Please read the Constitution of the United States of America and the Bobbitt excerpt, which is posted on Blackboard; the Stewart excerpt is optional.
