CONSERVATION ACTIVITIES AND COMMUNITY SERVICE

I devote significant personal time to education about pollinators and other insects, their conservation, and the (sub)urban wildscapes supporting them—my passion outside of legal writing. As part of that community service, I have given interviews for radio, television, magazine, website, and newspaper; presented for numerous organizations, conferences, and workshops, both locally, state-wide, and out of state; served on committees and an advisory group; and conducted educational presentations and activities, including establishing a website and social media presence (Facebook, Instagram, Pinterest). I am currently interested in the local laws affecting individuals' ability to wildscape in urban and suburban areas. My complete naturalist CV may be found here.
