The purpose of the Rocky Mountain Mineral Law Foundation (RMMLF) Scholarship Program is to encourage the study of natural resources law by well-qualified law students.

Joe Rudd was a prominent natural resources attorney in Alaska for whom the original scholarship program was named. Since 1980, 102 Joe Rudd Scholarships and 79 Rocky Mountain Mineral Law Scholarships (established in 1993) have been awarded, for a total of $595,000.

Tuition scholarships are available for the full scholastic year, 2007-2008, as well as separately for the spring and fall 2007 semesters. Approximately $55,000 per year is available for Joe Rudd and RMMLF scholarships.

Purpose. The objective of this program is to encourage the study of natural resources law by well-qualified law students who have the potential to make significant contributions to scholarship in natural resources law.

Eligibility. A law student enrolled at one of the Foundation’s Governing Law Schools who can demonstrate a commitment to study natural resources law or who is undertaking the study of natural resources law shall be eligible for a scholarship. The tuition scholarship must be used at, and will be paid directly to, one of the Governing Law Schools listed below.

Amount of Scholarships. Full year Scholarships, $2,500-$5,000; Fall Scholarships, $1,500-$4,000.

Criteria for Selection. The following criteria will be used by the Scholarship Committee:

- potential to make a significant contribution to the field of natural resources law
- academic ability
- leadership ability
- year in law school
- financial need
