

Occupational Hazards: What's Hair Got to Do with It?

Wendy Greene, J.D., LL.M.

Thursday, March 2, 2017

noon - 1:00 p.m.

1.0 CLE Credit Hour (No Ethics)

University of Houston Law Center

Hendricks Heritage Room

Please RSVP to healthlaw@uh.edu.

Professor D. Wendy Greene is a Visiting Professor of Law at the University of Kentucky College of Law. At Kentucky she teaches Constitutional Law I and II; alongside Constitutional Law she regularly teaches Employment Discrimination, Employment Law and seminars on critical race theory, race and law, and appearance discrimination in the workplace. Professor Greene has earned an international reputation for her authoritative body of work on “grooming codes discrimination.” Widely cited, her legal scholarship appears in reputed general and specialty law journals and has enjoyed significant real-world application. Her publications have shaped educational modules and professional training on workplace diversity and inclusion in addition to the legal positions of federal and administrative law judges and the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission in race discrimination cases. Most recently, the 11th Circuit Court of Appeals quoted Professor Greene’s work in EEOC v. Catastrophe Management Solutions: a Title VII race discrimination case challenging the legality of a workplace grooming policy banning dreadlocks.

A sought-after speaker and an award-winning professor, Greene is a graduate of Xavier University of Louisiana (cum laude, B.A. with Honors in English); Tulane University Law School (J.D.); and The George Washington University School of Law (LL.M.).