APA PLANNING & LAW DIVISION
22nd ANNUAL STUDENT WRITING COMPETITION
Now Honoring R. Marlin Smith, Richard Babcock, & Norman Williams, Jr

The American Planning Association’s Planning & Law Division is pleased to announce its 22nd annual Student Writing Competition. This year, the Competition has been renamed to honor the memory of three leading figures in American planning and zoning law -- R. Marlin Smith, Richard Babcock, and Norman Williams, Jr. -- and prizes for winning entries have been substantially increased. The winning entry in the Competition will receive a $2,500 prize and will be submitted for publication in The Urban Lawyer, the journal of the American Bar Association's Section of State & Local Government Law. The Competition will also award a $1,000 second prize and up to two Honorable Mention prizes of $250.

RULES

1. Eligibility. The competition is open to law students at ABA accredited law schools and planning students at schools listed in the current Guide to Graduate Education in Urban and Regional Planning who are enrolled in or who will complete a program of study leading to the J.D., LL.B., Masters or Ph.D. degree during the 2004-05 academic year. All entries must be the work of an individual, jointly-authored entries will not be considered. Entries may have been written for another purpose within the last year -- e.g., a paper submitted for a course or internship -- but must not have been previously published.

2. Subject Matter. Entries should demonstrate original thought on a question of significance in either planning or areas of law germane to planning (e.g., land use, local government or environmental law) and will be evaluated based on: (1) originality; (2) contribution to the understanding or development of the fields of planning and law; (3) quality of scholarship; and (4) quality and organization of writing.

3. Publication. As a condition of publication, the author grants to the American Bar Association the following rights: 1) the exclusive right of first publication of the Work throughout the world as part of the publication The Urban Lawyer; 2) the nonexclusive right to reprint the Work whenever necessary and to license use of the Work, or any part thereof, in any medium or form of communication in the English language, to others; and 3) the right to use the Work, or any part thereof, in any other publication produced by the American Bar Association. The author shall reserve all exclusive rights not specifically granted to the American Bar Association and will have the rights not specifically granted to the American Bar Association and will have the rights, after the Work has been published, to print the Work in any publication, provided that the author included in the publication the proper credit to the American Bar Association for prior publication of the work.

4. Directions for Entries. Entries are strictly limited to forty-five (45) pages with a 1" margin on all-sides. Text should be double-spaced in a ten-point pitch. Manuscripts should follow the stylistic guidelines of the Chicago Manual of Style (latest edition) published by the University of Chicago Press. All citations should be footnoted and should conform to the current edition of A Uniform System of Citation (the Blue Book), published by the Harvard Law Review Association.

5. Submission of Entries. To enter the competition, send four (4) copies of your entry, postmarked no later than June 6, 2005, to Professor Alan Weinstein at the address below. Each of the copies should have two title pages: the first should contain the title of the entry, the name and address of the student, and identify the student's law or planning school and date of graduation; the second should contain only the title of the entry. Please submit your entries to:
