

2. No. This technique could be considered a process. But it is largely a matter of personal skill and memory. It certainly does not possess a technical character within the meaning of § 101.