IP INTERSECTIONS: Administrative Law Workshop SPRING 2015

Details to follow

The UHLC Administrative Law Workshop gives professors in the first ten years of their careers an opportunity to present their work to senior administrative law scholars. This workshop provides a forum for scholarship outside of mainstream administrative law. It also allows presenters to get feedback from people with different substantive backgrounds.

The topic for 2015 is intellectual property law. Administrative law issues in this area include judicial deference to decisions from the Patent & Trademark Office (PTO) and the International Trade Commission (ITC), standing requirements to challenge PTO decisions, the scope of agency jurisdiction, the applicability of Chevron deference to the ITC, and much more.

Participants in the workshop, as pictured on the reverse side of this card, will include:
