PROFESSOR YSOLDE GENDREAU

PROFESSOR YSOLDE GENDREAU graduated from McGill University, where she obtained her B.C.L., LL.B., and LL.M degrees. Gendreau also holds her docteur en droit from the Université de Paris II. At the Université de Montréal, where she is associate dean (development), secretary of the law faculty, and holds the rank of professor, Gendreau teaches intellectual property law and competition law. She is a sessional lecturer at McGill University, where she teaches the intellectual property law course. Gendreau has been a member of the Bar of Quebec since 1985 and is counsel to the firm Gowling Lafleur Henderson. From 1995 to 2000, Gendreau has been a member of the Patented Medicine Prices Review Board.

Copyright law is her field of specialization and her publications in this area are numerous: The Retransmission Right: Copyright and the Rediffusion of Works by Cable (Oxford, ESC Publishing Ltd, 1990); La protection des photographies en droit d'auteur français, américain, britannique, et canadien (Paris, L.G.D.J., 1994). In collaboration with her colleague Ejan Mackaay, she is responsible for the annual edition of Législation canadienne en propriété intellectuelle/Canadian Legislation on Intellectual Property published by Carswell. Her articles appear in Canadian and foreign journals and she is the Canadian contributor to Paul Geller's International Copyright Law and Practice.

She is member of several intellectual property organizations, including the Association littéraire et artistique internationale (ALAI), the Intellectual Property Institute of Canada (IPIC), and the Association for the Advancement of Teaching and Research in Intellectual Property (ATRIP), of which she is president-elect.
